CRY ROOM AT ST MARY'S

I realise that when children in Mass at St Mary's are feeling a little restless that there is nowhere parents can take them to calm down. As such, I have asked a few parishioners to help me in clearing out the back room of church (where the staircase is) so that it can become a place where children can go during Mass if they are becoming uncomfortable in church. In order to make the room as welcoming as possible I was wondering if people might be able to donate children's bibles, religious books, Noah's Ark type toys, colouring pencils etc. and anything else that you think might make the space suitable for children.

I'd be very grateful.

FROM YOUR PARISH PRIEST

Speaking to a friend recently about their summer break, I was startled by how freely they admitted they had not bothered to go to Mass whilst on holiday in Spain. Spain, of course, is one of the most Catholic countries in the world, it's not like trying to find a church in Saudi Arabia, but apparently it was too difficult. I wasn't convinced, but I took him at his word. This example does make the point, however, that there are indeed occasions when it is impossible to fulfil our Sunday obligation. If you are poorly and too sick to attend Mass, if you are housebound or immobile, if you physically cannot get to church, then of course, the obligation does not apply. There may be bereavements or emergencies that prevent you from coming, you maybe caring for a sick relative etc. This is the law of the church and just plain common sense. If you have to work on Saturday evening, Sunday morning and Sunday evening, then again, it is physically impossible for you to go to Mass.

The obligation to attend Mass on Sundays and Holy Day of Obligation does apply, though, to everyone else, that is, those who are fit enough and able to get to church. To wilfully miss Mass on Sundays and Holy Days of Obligation because we can't be bothered or we have prioritised some other activity over attending church is a grave sin and it would be a dereliction of my duty as your parish priest not to make that clear. Being a practising Catholic by definition means attending Mass once a week, not just as and when we might feel like it. To deliberately fail to fulfil our obligation is to tell God that He is not worth our time or effort. If this has been the case, we must make use of the Sacrament of Confession.

Just as my parents had to remind me of why it was important that I attended school every day or had to eat my vegetables, it can be useful for us to be reminded why God commands us to keep the Sabbath holy. I often hear people say that they don't need to come to church to be a Christian or that they can simply pray at home instead, that is just not true. Belonging to Christ means that we are part of His body, we belong to a community that needs each other and needs to be together. We cannot participate in the Sacramental life of the Church if we are alone. The Eucharist gives the Church her identity – "The Eucharist makes the Church, and the Church makes the Eucharist." It enables us to worship Almighty God, to support each other on our journey of faith, and to be a visible sign of faith in the world.

As the Church needs the witness of the presence of each person, so too each believer needs to journey in faith and worship with their fellow disciples. Nourished by our encounter with the Risen Lord, fed with His Word and His Body and Blood in Holy Communion, and supported by the presence of each other, we receive strength week by week, to serve the Lord, glorify Him with our lives and become better people. Most people these days are very health-food conscious. It is important to eat properly every day to avoid hunger pains, weakness, malnutrition, and disease. It is the same with our spiritual life. We need to be spiritual-food conscious if we wish to avoid emptiness, spiritual weakness, vulnerability to temptation, and sickness due to sin.

If you are reading this and realise that your practice of the faith may have become a little lax of late, take the new term as an opportunity for a fresh start, wipe the slate clean and begin again, it couldn't be easier. The Lord tells us to attend Mass not to inconvenience us but simply because He loves us and wants what is best for us. If this means that you have to attend the Saturday vigil Mass in another parish then that is fine, if it means you have to attend the 6pm Mass at St Alban's then that's great too. There are many legitimate reasons for not attending Mass on a Sunday, but not feeling like it, going to the football or going out for brunch don't cut it.

God Bless you all,
Fr Hilton
